REPORT OF NEW MEMBERS.

There have been five new members added to the Society since the last annual report, four of whom became members by receiving a premium of seven dollars and upwards, according to the rules of the Society, from different cities and towns, as follows:—

Haverhill,	1	Peabody,	1
Lynn,	1	Salem,	1
Lynnfield,	1

INSTITUTES.

The Society held four Institutes the past year, on as many different days, both forenoon and afternoon, at which the following subjects were discussed by any of the audience who desired.

The first Institute was held at West Newbury, Friday, Jan. 12. Subject for the forenoon, "The One Hundred Dollar Cow," by Prof. F. S. Cooley. Afternoon, "The Growing of Alfalfa in Massachusetts," by Henry Fielding of Beverly.

The second Institute was held at Beverly, Jan. 26. Subject for the forenoon, "Fruit, Flowers and Vegetables," by A. A. Hixon of Worcester. Afternoon, "The Growing of Alfalfa in Massachusetts," by Henry Fielding of Beverly.

The third Institute was held at Parker Hall, Newbury, Feb. 9. Subject for the forenoon, "Dairying and Clean Milk." Afternoon, same subject, by P. M. Harwood.

The fourth Institute was held at Grange Hall, Methuen, Thursday, March 9. Subject for the forenoon, "Market Gardening," by J. Lewis Ellsworth, Secretary State Board of Agriculture. Afternoon, "Extensive, Intensive Farming in New England," by Prof. J. W. Sanborn of Pittsfield, N. H.

REPORT OF STATE INSPECTOR.

[COPY.]

BARRE, MASS., Nov. 19, 1906.

J. LEWIS ELLSWORTH, Sec. State Board of Agriculture.

Dear Sir:—Your inspector, as per assignment, visited the annual fair of the Essex Agricultural Society, held at Peabody, September 18, 19 and 20, and submits the following report. I reported to the genial secretary of the Society, Mr. John M. Danforth, on the morning of the 18th. Through his courtesy I met the officers of the Society formally. They were all alert in their attentions to their patrons and the many duties belonging to their different stations.

I first looked over the dairy stock, seventy-two in number, mostly thoroughbreds, representatives of the leading breeds, viz., Holsteins, Jerseys, Guernseys and Ayrshires. They were well housed and groomed, all good specimens of their kind, while each competitor showed individuals of special merit. Only two pairs of working oxen competed by showing their strength and docility on the loaded stone drag. Your inspector is of the opinion that a trial on the cart would be much more practical.

The horses came next in line, the exhibit consisting of stallions for light and heavy harness purposes, gentlemen's driving horses, light and heavy brood mares and colts. A small entry, but they all appeared well, both in the harness and the halter. It would seem that the location and inducements given would bring out a larger exhibit of this very important and useful animal.

The poultry house was next visited, where I found a very unusually large and interesting collection of poultry, hens, geese, ducks, pigeons, and pet stock, doing credit to the exhibitors and Society as well. There was a small entry of good swine of the popular breeds. Sheep made a good showing for the locality.

From the entire absence of the trotting horse, I conclude the Society does not cater to that kind of entertainment. A small collection of agricultural implements was shown under canvass. The midway abounded in side shows, fakirs, lunch counters, all crying out their wares. A balloon ascension, with parachute drop, a vaudeville company appearing on the stage each afternoon, constituted the side attractions offered by the Society.

A very large display of fruit, cut flowers, needle work, and works of art, were shown in a down town hall, the collection being very large and meritorious. All were artistically arranged and carefully labelled, and with a band concert in the evening, drew large crowds, the paid admissions of which must add materially to the treasury of the Society.

The Society's affairs seem to be administered by an able, conscientious, conservative board of officers. Its financial standing is apparently good. It has large and centrally located grounds, first-class buildings to house all kinds of stock. The Society should have, as it deserves, first-class patronage. This year children, with an age limit, were admitted the first day free, a plan which I think other societies would do well to carefully consider.

Respectfully submitted,

(Signed) J. Harding Allen, Inspector.

ADDRESS DELIVERED BEFORE THE ESSEX COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY, JANUARY, 1906. BY HENRY FIELDEN, SUPT. CHERRY HILL FARM, BEVERLY, MASS.

ALFALFA.

Alfalfa or lucerne has been cultivated as a forage plant, for more than 20 centuries. It was familiar to the Egyptians, Medes and Persians, it was introduced into Greece 470 B. C. It grew spontaneously in the high dry regions of Central Asia. Preceding the Christian era it was prominent in Roman agriculture. It was esteemed highly by the ancients as forage for their horses, and it has been cultivated in Italy to this day. From Italy it was introduced into Spain and Southern France and was carried to Mexico, at the time of the Spanish Invasion. It found its way from there to the western coast of South America and still may be found growing over large areas of that section. From Chili it was taken to California in 1854 and there, mainly under irrigation, flourishes today to the exclusion of other plants. It has spread rapidly eastward and is now grown extensively in the western states and territories, and is now commencing to find favor in the eastern states.

Alfalfa is an upright, branching, smooth perennial clover, growing as high as three feet. Its leaves are three parted. The blossom is purple, the flowers instead of being in a head, as in red clover, are in long loose clusters. These clusters are scattered all over the plant instead of being borne, as in red clover, on the upper branches only. The seeds are kidney shaped, yellowish brown in color and average about 1-12 of an inch long by half as thick. They are about 1-2 larger than red clover seed.

Alfalfa feeds deep. The taproots descend to great depths wherever the soil is loose and permeable. It has been known to send its roots to a depth of 40 feet and under specially favorable conditions it is believed would go deeper. The young plant consists of a number of low branches sprouting from a simple base at the crown of the root. The branches ascend directly above the ground and form a compact tuft.

When the stems are cut off the stalk dies back to the base and new buds start out of the crown of the root and grow forming new stems. This method of growth explains why so many report that alfalfa is destroyed by continuous close grazing. The stems of most forage plants when cut or broken branch out above ground forming lateral shoots that immediately grow up and take the place of the old stem. With alfalfa it comes direct from the crown of the root.

Alfalfa will grow in favorable soil anywhere from sea-level to 7000 feet elevation, it is not influenced as much by altitude as by warmth and depth of soil, the drainage and character of subsoil. It will grow best on a light sandy loam with a loose subsoil. It was generally believed that the plant would thrive best in the regions west of the Rocky Mountains but since 1894 as good results have been obtained east of the Rocky Mountains and a better grade of hay grown where the subsoil was loose and permeable. Alfalfa will not grow well on land that contains an excess of iron ; it feeds heaviest on lime, potash, magnesium and phosphoric acid and succeeds best where these elements are in evidence. Lime is the most essential to its rapid and thrifty growth. Above all, the land must be well drained, naturally or artificially. Alfalfa is seldom a success on land where the subsoil is impervious to water.

The first two months of the life of the alfalfa plant is the most critical period, and at this time it is very susceptible to changes in temperature and excess of water. Alfalfa will not thrive with wet feet. The land on which it is proposed to grow alfalfa should have been planted with a hoed crop for several years, so that all weeds could be subdued. The land should be thoroughly plowed and harrowed. In the preparation of the land for alfalfa at Cherry Hill Farm the land is first plowed to a depth of eight or ten inches, a heavy coating of manure applied and thoroughly harrowed in with a double action cutaway harrow. Thirty bushels of lime to the acre are applied, spread evenly, and thoroughly worked into the soil with the same harrow. Five hundred pounds of fertilizer is then spread, and the land harrowed as many times as is necessary to make a fine seed bed. I have harrowed a field as many as fifteen times, and have been well repaid for doing so. After the seed bed is prepared, we sow thirty pounds of alfalfa seed to the acre. In the past we have used a nurse crop with the alfalfa; in the future we shall use none. The first cost of preparation of the soil may seem large, but it must be considered that you expect to take three crops a year for three and as many more years as you can. The first expense is therefore spread over several years. Plowing deep is essential to success, as shallow plowing often causes failures. If the roots cannot penetrate a foot the first year, your crop being a surface one, is liable to be killed out the first winter, or by severe drought in summer. It would be a benefit to sub-soil if your alfalfa goes down fifteen inches the first year. I think there is no doubt of success. Alfalfa has been known to thrive on land with hardpan sub-soil, but it will do better on land with a loose sub-soil.

The best time to sow the seed is in spring, as soon as the land warms up,the seed may be either broadcasted or drilled. We sow broadcast. To get a good quality of forage the plants should be close together, so that the stems will be small and not woody. Alfalfa is easily choked with weeds, hence the necessity of clean land. As soon as our plants are a foot tall, we mow them down, whether there are weeds or not. This cutting should be left on the ground to protect the roots from the scorching sun. Whether the field is weedy or not, repeat the mowing as often as your crop is high enough to cut, as every time you cut off the plant it drives the roots deeper into the soil, and this will give the plant more strength and vigor to go through the winter. Alfalfa will yield a better crop the second and succeeding years than the first year. On a plot of three acres which had been down three years we cut sixteen and one-third tons of cured alfalva in three cuttings, and could have cut a fourth cutting, but preferred to leave it for a mulch for winter.

The centre of that field was killed out last winter by water collecting on it and freezing, the centre of the field being a basin, the outer edges where the water could drain off, wintered all right, and we cut off four crops during the past season, and then plowed the field up. We have ten acres which has gone through two seasons, and we cut off three heavy crops the past summer, and on Oct. 18th I cut this bunch of alfalfa hap-hazard from the field, and it measured eighteen inches tall. This was a fourth crop, which was left as a mulch. We cut the alfalfa as soon as the first blossoms appear. If you wait until your field is in full bloom, you will have lost a good part of your feeding value, as the stem will have become too woody, making it unpalatable for cattle. We cut in the afternoon, let the alfalfa lie in the swath until wilted, then rake into windrows, put it up in cocks five feet high. We then cover these with hay caps ; as soon as the dew is off the following day, we uncover and move the cocks over on to new ground, cover again at night, and continue to do this until the alfalva is cured and ready to put in the barn. If the cocks are left in one place longer than twenty-four hours, the alfalfa plants underneath are liable to be smothered. It usually takes six days to cure it in this way, which is the only way to cure it, and save the leaves, which are its greatest value. Alfalfa does not turn water as readily as red clover or timothy, hence it should be covered in curing. A soaking rain will decrease its value fifty per cent.

The length of time which alfalfa will grow without reseeding is something we cannot yet tell in this climate, but if we only are able to save it three years I consider it a paying crop. In the state of Sonora, Mexico, is a field known to have been kept in alfalfa for sixty years, and is said to be in as good condition to-day as it ever was. In the West growers frequently go over their fields with a sharp-tooth harrow to loosen up the surface of the ground and kill out weeds where they appear, and sow in seed in places where the plants are thin. I have not done this yet, but propose doing so in the spring.

FEEDING VALUE.

For dairy cattle there is no forage that equals alfalfa. It is palatable, rich, easily digested. In the west in many cases dairy cows are fed alfalfa to the exclusion of everything else in the forage line, and with corn it makes a balanced ration, being rich in protein and lacking in carbohydrates ; the corn supplies the carbo-hydrates.

D. H. Otis, Professor of Dairy Husbandry at the Kansas Agricultural College, says: "Alfalfa can be used in place of bran for dairy cows, and is the only roughage that can be used with corn and make a balanced ration. While feeding the alfalfa to dairy cows at this station, we have produced butter fat at 11.9 cents per pound. When we did not have alfalfa, and were obliged to balance up the ration with high priced concentrates, the butter fat cost from 15 to 17 cents a pound."

When fed to work horses with the addition of a small grain ration, they will keep in good condition.

Alfalva is one of the best soiling crops. It can be fed to advantage in this way in New England, especially in seasons when the weather is not favorable to curing it. Care should be taken not to feed it when it is wet, as, like clover, it will bloat the cattle. It can be pastured by sheep or cattle, but it is unsafe to pasture it on account of danger from over-eating, causing bloating. Another of the disadvantages of pasturing alfalfa is the tramping by the cattle, which packs the soil too hard around the roots, preventing the alfalfa from making proper growth.

The feeding of alfalfa hay in winter gives the milk and butter a rich yellow color.

As to its value as a milk producer, from recent tests at Cherry Hill Farm I found that by feeding alfalfa in place of clover mixed hay to eighty cows, at an additional cost of one dollar per day over the cost of the clover hay, we got an increase in milk of fifty quarts per day, which to us was five dollars a day, against an outlay of one dollar. To the farmer, getting four cents a quart for his milk, it would mean an increase of two dollars for an expenditure of one dollar.

ALFALFA AS A SOIL RENOVATOR.

Alfalfa belongs to the class of plants known as nitrogen gatherers. All legumes draw nitrogen directly from the air. The roots of the alfalfa plants will be found to be covered with a number of small nodules, or tubercles, and if these nodules are examined under a strong microscope, the tissues will show great numbers of bacteria. It is through the action of these organisms that the plant draws nitrogen from the air. Grasses take no nitrogen, except that which is in soluble form in the soil. Alfalfa manufactures the most valuable and expensive fertilizer. By raising alfalfa you not only provide the best forage for your stock, but you are enriching your fields at the same time. When this crop is plowed under or fed to stock, and the manure returned to the ground, it supplies a large quantity of nitrogen. And in my opinion, in feeding alfalfa to your cattle and using the manure from those cattle on your land, you are distributing the bacteria necessary to the successful growing of alfalfa on your land.

ENEMIES OF ALFALFA.

In the eastern states the greatest enemy to the successful growth of Alfalfa is weedy land. Of our native grasses, witch grass is the worst, so don't sow alfalfa on land infested with witch grass. The worst weed which growers of alfalfa east of the Missouri river have to contend with is dodder or love vine. This weed, or the species that does the greatest damage, is an importation, and has spread over a large part of the states where alfalfa is grown. It was brought to this country in flax and alfalfa seed from Europe. Dodder belongs to the morning glory family, but unlike the common morning glory of the fields, it is parasitic, the stems are without leaves and appear like threads, orange or yellow in color. When the seed of the dodder germinates the young, the plant is able to grow for a short time upon the supply of food laid up for it in the seed, but unless its stem can feed it dies. As soon as the dodder touches the stem of the alfalfa it twines itself around it and fastens itself to the stalk with numerous suckers which enter the tissues of the alfalfa plant. These suckers draw all the food materials from the alfalfa and soon choke it out. The only practical remedy for the extermination of dodder is to mow the alfalfa in early summer and burn it where it lies. This will completely kill the dodder without injuring the alfalfa as alfalfa comes from crown of the root under ground. The best way is to prevent its introduction into your land by buying seed free from it. So far I have not heard of any dodder growing in New England fields of alfalfa.

Alfalfa weighs 60 lbs. to the bushel.

For a hay crop sow 30 lbs. to the acre.

Sow seed that is clean and free from weed seeds.

Sow in spring as soon as the ground gets warm. Sow broadcast.

Do not cover the seed too deep.

Alfalfa does not attain maturity until after the second year, therefore do not get discouraged if you do not get results at first.

Alfalfa grows best on a deep sandy loam with a loose subsoil. The land must be well drained.

Alfalfa is a deep feeder, plow the ground thoroughly, the deeper the better.

Alfalfa will not thrive on an acid soil, overcome acid conditions with lime.

Cut when first blossoms appear, in afternoon, allow it to wilt, put up in cocks, cover with hay caps, move each day until cured. Do not cut too late in the season.

From U. S. government tests, one acre of alfalfa hay has produced as much beef as 9,575 lbs. of timothy hay or almost 2 acres of timothy. It has produced as much beef as 11,967 lbs. of red clover or equal to 1 3-4 acres.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE CHOSEN TO PREPARE SUITABLE REPORT ON THE DEATH OF BENJAMIN P. WARE.

The Essex Agricultural Society desires to put on record its high appreciation of the character and career of Benjamin Pond Ware. For two generations, the term extending from 1848 until his death at the age of 84, Feb. 7, 1906, Mr. Ware was a member of this Society, serving it constantly in every various function, and for sixteen years, from 1875 to 1891, he was its president. He was born in Salem, Apr. 9, 1822. He was the son of Erastus Ware, a typical New England farmer. The father came of sturdy, puritanic stock, descendants from an old-world ancestry through the pioneer, Robert Ware, who left Suffolk, England, for Dedham in New England, in 1634, and received a grant of land in the part of Dedham now Wrentham, being a householder, in 1642. Coming from Wrentham in Suffolk he probably gave the name of Wrentham to his part of Dedham, where he died the second man in importance in the town. Erastus Ware had left Wrentham for Danvers in 1810, and had at once become an authority in milk-farming and in the special problems which husbandry involves when conducted in populous sections and near city markets. He married a Wardwell, a daughter of one of Washington's life-guardsmen,—and from 1820 to 1845, he was in charge, together with his sons Horace and Benjamin, both born there, of the great Pickman Farm in Salem,—four hundred and twenty odd acres in area,—the largest aggregation of tillage land under one title in this county. In 1831, Erastus Ware bought the old farm in Marblehead since identified with the name, and here he was a pioneer in the practice of opening his doors to summer guests. At the old farm house, in 1835, he received and protected George Thomson and William Lloyd Garrison, upon whose views of slavery, then denounced with threats of violence, the Wares looked with favor. In 1846 his son Benjamin and he built the Clifton House, which took its name from Hannah Upham Clifton, married to Benjamin Ware that year, and, with a daughter, surviving him. It was successfully conducted as a seaside resort until it burned down in 1893.

Benjamin Pond Ware lived to a ripe old age. For nearly his whole life he was exceptionally active in mind and body. Growing up as he did in a family which, with Timothy Pickering, regarded husbandry as "the noblest of pursuits" and like him, in 1820 found the soil of our historic farms "already exhausted and needing manures," —there was little to be known of Essex County farming which Mr. Ware did not know. It was his fortune to live in a day when old systems were making way for new scientific methods and larger mechanical aids and better facilities for brain-work in the craft which makes two blades of grass grow where one grew before. Denser populations to be fed and increased land-values which must yield an income were calling for a more productive husbandry. For a century the French had taught in their schools the art and science of tilling the soil by systematic methods. Mr. Ware was a true son of the Puritan in his reverence for tradition, but his mind was hospitably open to new methods. Nobody was before him in the use of the silo, and, at the close of his active career, a tour of Europe afforded new views of the ancient methods there pursued which he made haste to share with the brethren of his craft. He was an effective public speaker and writer, and the "Massachusetts Ploughman" furnished him throughout his life with a medium for reaching others which his scanty schooling would have closed to a man of less vigor. Two terms at the Phillips Andover Academy supplemented for him the winter sessions of the District School, but these gave him all the vocabulary which an earnest, progressive thinker, full of public spirit, found occasion to use. His voice was good,—his manner confident but unassuming, and his whole bearing, marked by transparent frankness, was such as carries conviction, and had the emphasis that belongs to a strong man.

Early and late, Mr. Ware urged the establishment of a State Agricultural Experimental Station, and he lived to be a manager of such a school as well as a member of a State Board of Agriculture. He was a Vice-President of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, of which, in 1865, he became a life member. He was master of the State Grange of Massachusetts for two years, and of Subordinate Grange Number 38, for six years. He was President of the Marblehead and Swampscott Farmers' Club for four years, and for ten years a Trustee of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, and for nine years a trustee of the New England Agricultural Society.

Practical farmer that he was in every fibre, these activities, added to the daily oversight of a well-kept farm, did not exhaust his vital forces. He was for sixteen years on the School Board of his town, and for five years a Trustee of the local Savings Bank. No enterprise which seemed to promise well for human advancement was without its interest for him,—be it good roads,—the planting of shade trees,—the protection of children and dumb creatures against brutality and neglect,—the improvement of crops and live-stock,—or some moral, social, educational or political movement which called for self-sacrifice, intelligence and courage. Popular or not, Mr. Ware could be counted on to stand by his convictions. If he was always the thrifty and sagacious model farmer,—the true son of the soil,—he was no less the large-hearted, open-minded, public-spirited citizen. He did much to secure the freeing of the Salem and Boston Turnpike and of the Chelsea Bridge, with the incidental result that tolls were speedily abolished on every incorporated turnpike and bridge in Massachusetts. He did much to promote the chartering of a street railway between Lynn and Boston and the subsequent extension of it to Marblehead. He did much to push on the construction of the spur-track of the Eastern Railroad which joined Swampscott with Marblehead. He was a principal factor in urging forward to success, in the face of grave opposition, the beautiful and now populous shore drive called Atlantic Avenue, which has resulted so auspiciously for the surrounding section. New England husbandry will look far to find a more typical or more estimable follower of the craft of Adam.

CONSTITUTION

ESSEX AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

ARTICLE 1. There shall be a President, four Vice-Presidents, a Secretary, and a Treasurer, who shall be Trustees, ex-officio, and one Trustee from each city and town in the county. The President, Vice-Presidents, Secretary and one Trustee from each city and town in the county shall be elected at the annual meeting by ballot, and the Treasurer by the Trustees annually at their meeting in November. Nomination for Trustees may be made by any member or members of the Society from the city or town from which he is to be elected for at least one week before said meeting to the Secretary, and he shall prepare ballots for the same.

ART. 2. There shall be an Annual Meeting of the Society, at such times as the Trustees shall determine, at which all officers shall be elected. Twenty members at least shall be necessary to constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

ART. 3. If at any meeting of the Society, or the Trustees, the President and Vice Presidents shall be absent, the members present may appoint one from among them to preside at such meeting.

ART. 4. The President, or in case of his absence, either of the Vice Presidents, with the advice of the Trustees, may call a special meeting of the Society; or whenever a written application, with the reason assigned therefor, shall be made by any twelve members of the Society to the President and Trustees, they shall call such meeting.

ART. 5. The meetings of the Trustees shall be held at such time and place as they shall from time to time agree upon; seven of whom, with the presiding officer, shall make a quorum.

ART. 6. The Trustees shall regulate all the concerns of the Society during the intervals of the meetings; propose such objects of improvement to the attention of the public, publish such communications, and offer such premiums in such form and value as they think proper (provided the premiums offered do not exceed the funds of the Society); and shall lay before the Society at each of its meetings a statement of their proceedings and of the communications made to them.

ART. 7. The Secretary shall take minutes of all the votes and proceedings of the Society and of the Trustees, and enter them in separate books; and shall record all such communications as the Trustees shall direct. He shall write and answer all letters relating to the business of the Society.

ART. 8. The Treasurer shall receive all monies due or payable to the Society, and all donations that may be made to it, for which he shall give duplicate receipts, one of which shall be lodged with the Secretary, who shall make a fair record thereof. The Treasurer shall from time to time pay out such monies as he shall have orders for from the Trustees; and shall annually, and whenever thereto required, render a fair account of all his receipts and payments to the Society or a committee thereof. He shall give bonds for the faithful discharge of duty in such sum as the trustees shall direct, and with such sureties.

ART. 9. A committee shall be appointed annually by the Trustees to audit the Treasurer's accounts, who shall report to the Society; and the same being accepted, shall be entered by the Secretary in his books.

ART. 10. In case of death, resignation, incapacity, or removal out of the county, of the Secretary, or of the Treasurer, the Trustees shall take charge of the official books, papers, and other effects belonging to the office that may be vacated, and give receipts for the same, which books, papers, etc., they may deliver to some person whom they may appoint to fill the office until the next meeting of the Society, at which time there shall be a new choice.

ART. 11. *Any citizen of the county may become a member of the Society by paying the sum of THREE DOLLARS to increase the permanent fund of the institution.

ART. 12. A committee shall be raised from time to time to solicit and receive subscriptions for raising a fund for encouraging the noblest of pursuits, the Agriculture of our county, the same to be sacredly appropriated to that purpose.

ART. 13. All ordained ministers of the gospel who reside within the county shall be admitted honorary members of the Society.

ART. 14. In addition to the usual number of Trustees annually elected, the past presidents of the Society shall be honorary members of the Board of Trustees.

ART. 15. The foregoing constitution may be amended by a proposition of the amendment in writing by a member at a regular meeting; the same to lie over for the action at the next annual meeting of the Society.

*Members will receive from the Secretary a certificate of membership. No fines or assessments are ever imposed. Members are entitled to vote in all its transactions, with free use of the Library and a copy of the printed Transactions each year.

PREMIUM LIST OF

FOR THE

Eighty-seventh Annual Cattle Show and Fair.

Duties of Trustees.

The trustee of each town is instructed to see the several members of Committees in his town previous to the Show, and urge upon them the importance of attending to their duties. Also impress upon exhibitors from localities near to the Exhibition the importance of entering their exhibits for the hall the afternoon and evening of Monday, in fairness to those from a distance, who are obliged to come Tuesday.

To be prompt at the meeting in June for filling Committees, and making sure that the names proposed at those meetings are of persons who will serve.

Duties of Committees.

Committees on live stock and articles exhibited on the Fair Grounds should appear at the Secretary's office on the grounds at twelve o'clock, punctually, on the first day of the exhibition, and there organize, take the books of entry, and proceed at once to business. Committees in hall should take the books of entry from the Superintendent promptly after the entries close.

Full reports of awards by committees, on the blanks furnished by the Secretary, to be signed by all the members acting on the same, are required of each committee.

A majority of any committee are authorized to act.

☞No member of the Society shall act on any committee of which he is an exhibitor in the same class.

The diploma of the Society being considered the highest premium that can be awarded, no committee is authorized to award it, except for animals and articles of special merit, deserving of endorsement and recommendation by the Society.

No committee is authorized to award gratuities, except the committee on agricultural implements, carriages, bread, honey and canned fruits, domestic manufactures in hall, and flowers; or any premium, unless the rules of the Society have been strictly complied with. Neither shall they award premiums or graiuities in excess of the amount appropriated.

No gratuity is to be awarded of less than fifty cents, except on work by the children, and none in that class less than twenty-five cents.

The several committees are requested to affix premium cards, and also on animals blue and red printed premium ribbons (which may be had of the Secretary or assistants on the grounds and at the hall), for the several animals or articles, designating the grade of premium awarded each, and the name of the peason to whom awarded, and especial care should be taken that the cards issued correspond with the awards in their report to the Society.

The reports of awards of premiums on animals and articles exhibited at the Show, must be delivered promptly to the Secretary for announcement on Thursday.

Any member of a committee who cannot serve on the same is requested to give notice to the Secretary, before the show, so that the vacancy may be filled.

Each member of the several committees will receive a ticket of admission to the grounds and hall of exhibition on application to the Secretary.

General Rules.

Competitors are requested to carefully read the rules and premium list before making entries.

Claim (entries) for premiums to be awarded at the Exhibition on the Fair Grounds, other than live stock, must be entered with the Secretary of the Society, or his agent, and in the Exhibition Hall, on or before 11 A. M., of the first day thereof.

All entries of live stock must be entered with the Secretary at least one week previous to the holding of the Fair and no entries will be received after that date.

Any person not a member of the Society, awarded seven dollars and upwards, shall receive a certificate of membership, for which three dollars of his award will be taken to increase the funds of the Society.

Diplomas awarded will be delivered and premiums paid, to the person to whom the premium of gratuity is awarded or an agent duly authorized, on application to the Treasurer, at Salem Safe Deposit and Trust Co., Salem, on and after the first Monday of November.

All premiums and gratuities awarded, the payment of which is not demanded of the Treasurer on or before the first day of May next succeeding the Exhibition, will be considered as given to increase the funds of the Society.

In all cases the reports of awards of premiums and gratuities made by the several committees and adopted by the Societies shall be final. Committees shall see that the premium cards issued, correspond with the premiums and gratuities awarded in their reports.

No person shall be entitled to receive a premium, unless he complies with the conditions on which the premiums are offered, and by proper entry as required, gives notice of his intention to compete for the same; and committees are instructed to award no premium unless the animal or article offered is worthy.

No animal or object that is entered in one class, with one committee, shall be entered in another class, except farm horses which may be entered for fast walking, and Milch Cows which may be entered with a herd.

All stock eligible for premiums must be owned by residents and kept in the county.

In regard to all subjects for which premiums are offered it is to be distinctly understood that the Trustees reserve to themselves the right of judging the quality of the animal or article offered; and that no premium will be awarded unless the objects of them are of decidedly superior quality.

Pure Bred Animals, defined by the State Board of Agriculture.

The Proof that an animal is so bred should be a record of the animal or its ancestors, as recorded in some herd book, recognized by leading breeders, and the public generally, as complete and authentic.

2. When a certain number or quantity of plants and flowers is designated in the schedule, there must be neither more nor less than that number or quantity of specimens shown.

3. When only one premium from each exhibitor is offered for any article, only a single specimen or collection can compete, but when a second or third premium is offered, one, two or three specimens or collections may be exhibited for competition but no variety can be duplicated.

4. No premium shall be awarded unless the specimens exhibited are of superior excellence, possessing points of superiority and worthy of such premium, not, even if they are the only ones of their kind on exhibition.

5. No specimen entered for one premium shall be admitted in competition for another different premium.

6. Competitors will be required to furnish information (if the committee so request), as to their modes of cultivation, or in the case of native plants and flowers, where such were found.

7. All plants exhibited for premiums must have the name legibly and correctly written on stiff card, wood or some other permanent and suitable substance. and so attached to same as to be easily seen. Flowers when specified to be named to comply also with above rule.

8. Plants in pots to be entitled to premiums must show skilful culture in the profusion of bloom and in the beauty, symetry and vigor of the specimens; also bouquets, baskets, design work, etc., must show taste, skill, and harmony in arrangement, both as to colors and material they are made of, and purposes for which they are intended.

9. All flowers exhibited must be shown upon their own stem, flowers in "Design" word alone excepted; and this exception, if overcome and avoided, to be taken into account by the committee in awarding the premiums.

10. The committee are authorized to award gratuities for any new and rare plants and flowers or "Designs of merit" for which no premium is offered, but in no case shall the total sum (premiums and gratuities together) on plants and flowers exceed the amount, $125, limited by the Society for this department.

11. No member of the committee for awarding premiums or gratuities shall in any case vote, or decide respecting an award for which such member may be a competitor, or in which he may have an interest, but in such case such member shall temporarily vacate his place upon the Committee, and such vacancy for the time being may be filled by the remaining members of the Committee, or they may act without.

12. Attention is again called to above Rules and Regulations for plants and flowers, and General Rules of the Society, and all articles not entered in conformity therewith will be disqualified, and premiums will be awarded only to exhibitors who have complied with said Rules, etc.
